

GERMANS MARSHAL NEW ARMY FOR BATTLE ON RIGHT WING

Lines of communication with the coast cities has followed by energetic efforts to check the movement. It is reported that the British Indian cavalry has been sent to the north and it will have its "baptism of fire" against the Uhlan columns of von Kluck and von Boehm. The War Office believes they will check the widespread flanking movement now being attempted by the German cavalry supported by automobile artillery.

British and French reinforcements are being pushed forward and every attempt of the Germans to break through the main allied line between Lassigny and Tracy-le-Mont has been repulsed with very heavy loss.

LONDON, Oct. 7 (Associated Press).—The conflict along the rivers of northern France, although now in its twenty-third day, shows fewer signs of an early end than it did two days ago.

Then Gen. von Kluck appeared dangerously threatened by the enveloping movement of the allied armies. To-day that resourceful German commander, having obtained heavy reinforcements, is apparently engaged in his turn in attempting to outflank the French and British lines.

This counter stroke is viewed here as the supreme feature in the situation in the western theatre of the war.

Gen. von Kluck has also been trying to cut right through the center of the allies' extended left at Lassigny. The official French communication says this attempt was foiled, but it is not doubted that the effort will be renewed. In the event of success it would compel the left wing of the French army to retire toward the coast in order to escape the German lines stretching out from the north and east.

The fighting in this neighborhood is described in the official French report as "more and more violent." It is believed it must reach to Antwerp and largely influence the fate of that fortress.

The surest way of raising the siege of the temporary Belgian capital would be the success of the French turning movement on the Oise.

FRENCH REPORT OF THE ALLIES' CAMPAIGN.

French War Office Now Admits Dangerous Move of the Germans

PARIS, Oct. 7 (United Press).—The Germans continue their enveloping movement in northwestern France, according to the official 3 o'clock communique.

It states that the battle continues with great violence on the French left and has now extended to the vicinity of Lens and La Bassée.

[La Bassée is in the Department of the Nord, on the canal of the same name, and is midway between Arras and Lille, while Lens is some six miles further south. The battle line extends to Arras, some miles northwest of Lille, and close to the Belgian frontier.]

The battle is declared to be prolonged by enormous masses of cavalry, who are said to be centered at Arras.

[The German cavalry is probably accompanied by motor or artillery. This device, newly created by the Germans, permits heavy guns to keep pace with quick moving mounted troops for the first time in warfare. By turning loose the guns before the cavalry advances en masse the offensive power of the horsemen is greatly increased.]

[The Germans at Lille can seriously interrupt the development of an offensive against the German communications, and if the allied advance line is but a thin front it may be forced back a few miles from Arras.]

The French and British columns have been unable to check the German offensive. They have been compelled to go way further in the neighborhood of Douai and have been back to the neighborhood of Lens.

The fighting now continues all along the north and south front, extending from the vicinity of Compiègne nearly to the Belgian border.

To offset the German successes in the west the French continue to drive the Germans back in the Woevre district. The French movement northward is increasing hourly in activity.

The text of the official bulletin follows:

"On our left wing the battle still continues with great violence. The opposing fronts extend into the region between Lens and La Bassée and are lengthened by masses of cavalry who are in grips as far as the vicinity of Armentières on the Belgian frontier.

"On the front extending from the Somme to the Meuse there is nothing to report.

"In the Woevre district the enemy made a new effort to stop our progress but his attacks again failed.

"In Russia the German army, defeated in the battle of Tannenberg, which lasted from Sept. 28 to Oct. 3, endeavored to arrest the Russian pursuit at prepared positions along the lines of the Wirballen frontier. At Lyck the Russian troops continue their advance and at several places they have penetrated into East Prussia. To sum up, the German offensive on the Niemen has been brought to an end by a complete check accompanied by very considerable losses."

MAN DECORATES SOLDIERS WHO SAVED BABY GIRL IN MIDST OF BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (By mail to New York to United Press).—The rescue of a nine-month-old baby girl, who was swept by the guns of Russian artillerymen from the Cross of St. George conferred upon them by the Russian Emperor.

The Russian battery was retiring near the town of one of the gunners saw the baby girl crawling from the doorway of the house into the path of the guns. The Russian dismounted and rushed to the infant. The street was full of shrapnel, and just as he was about to pick up the child, a shell burst over him. The artilleryman threw himself on the ground and shielded the little one with his body. He was struck in the arm with a bullet. Two of his comrades, with his little protégée, were killed by the next shot of a shell.

HOW THE BATTLE LINE ON FRENCH BORDER LOOKS TO-DAY

AMIENS BATTLE LIKE FILM PLAY, SAYS SPECTATOR

Lines Blotted Out in Instant by Shells, United States Vice-Consul Tells.

A vivid description of the battle of Amiens, France, fought between German troops and the allies early in September, was given to-day by Elwood Welden, formerly American Vice-Consul-General to Paris and to Budapest, Hungary, who landed in Jersey City with his wife from the Lloyd Sabaudo steamship Regina d'Italia.

"The battle I witnessed. I would not call it frightful," he said. "It seemed to me more as if I were witnessing a motion picture performance. I would see a line of German soldiers advance, and then they would be blotted out. They would simply fade to nothing."

"I would see a German shell from one of those 42-centimetre guns come hurtling through the air. Yes, it was possible to see those shells—and to hear them. They would strike in the line of the allies, and then there would be a vacant spot. That is modern warfare."

SAW GIRL WHOSE BREASTS HAD BEEN CUT OFF.

"There was great excitement in Amiens. The village lies in a valley and is surrounded by hills. The road leading to it from Belgium passes through a flat country, and by this road the Germans advanced, refugees fleeing ahead of them. The troops of the allies were massed in the valley. The refugees were a sad sight, many of them having been mistreated by Germans. I saw one girl in the hospital at Amiens, both of whose breasts had been cut off by German soldiers, according to her own story."

"My trip to the hospital was made while the Germans were coming toward Amiens. An officer in the English medical corps finally led me out of the institution and we ascended a hill about three miles from the valley. There the English medical corps was stationed, out of the line of fire from both sides."

"At noon word was passed that the Germans were close to the village. We were scanning the horizon toward the northeast eagerly to see the first glimpses of them. The first of them we saw was one of their aeroplanes, hovering high above us, reconnoitering."

"Down in the valley the allies were massed, fifty thousand strong. They were spread out in a straight line. One of the English officers looking toward Arras at last cried that the enemy was in sight. It was fifteen minutes afterward before I could make them out. They were approaching in crescent formation,

WAR SUMMARY

The battle in the north of France continues with great violence.

The French War Office, in its statement to-day, says that the battle front extends virtually to the Belgian frontier. The German General Staff announced to-day that the fighting on the German right wing had been successful.

Berlin also says, it is reported in Government circles that two more forts at Antwerp—Forts Kessel and Groeben—have fallen before the Germans. The capitulation of the city is regarded in Berlin as close at hand.

A German torpedo-boat has been sunk off the estuary of the Ems in the North Sea by the British submarine boat E-9.

A Peking despatch quotes a German news agency as saying that Japanese forces have occupied the island of Yap of the Caroline group in the Pacific.

A report from Petrograd says that Russian heavy artillery is bombarding Przemysl in Galicia and that Austrian field forces that attempted to relieve the fortress were defeated and compelled to retire. Last night's German official statement said that the new Russian advance against East Prussia had been checked and that Russian forces have been defeated in Russian Poland.

Tokio announces that the War Office believes that the Japanese have sunk a German cruiser and two German gunboats in Kiaochow Bay.

An official statement issued in Vienna says that German and Austrian forces surprised the enemy in Russian Poland and drove the Russians back across the Vistula.

A Rotterdam correspondent reports that a new plan to convoke the Berne Bureau in the interests of peace, while not successful, has been received with much sympathy.

with the two points facing the allies.

"On the left wing of the allies was the British artillery, and on the right wing the French artillery, with the infantry, headed by the Turcos, in the center. The allies were to launch their center at the enemy and protect the advance with the artillery."

LINE WOULD VANISH AS HUGE SHELLS BURST.

"Ominously the German crescent came on toward those who were waiting down in the valley. Then the shells of the big German siege guns began bursting. I would hear one singing through the air; I would see it whizzing like a shooting star. Then would follow a crash and an obliteration of part of the allied formation."

"It seemed as if I were dreaming—that what I saw was not reality—that it was a dream of seeing a motion picture film. I can explain that feeling only by saying I could not comprehend that what was before me was reality—that I felt sure I would awake and find I had been in a stupor."

"I knew what was to take place, and so I shuddered when, as the Germans reached a point about two miles from the line of the allies, the latter's center began advancing. It kept ahead faster and faster and the Germans, too, moved forward."

"Then came the clash. It was a charge with bayonets—hand to hand fighting, with galling guns mowing down lines of men and shells obliterating other bodies. I was sickening. I turned away. I hoped fervently that I was struggling through a nightmare, and that I might awake. The fighting lasted four hours, and then the allies were driven back. Before the Germans entered the town, however, I jumped on a train and got to Paris. I do not believe the retreat of the allies was a feint. The Germans seemed to drive them back. The allies fought bravely, but the Germans fought bravely and systematically."

Mr. Welden's home is in Philadelphia.

DE SEGUROLA TELLS OF METROPOLITAN SINGERS IN WAR

Poor Dinah Gilly Was Among First to Go to the Front.

While there will be plenty of grand opera stars in New York this winter, many will be fighting in Europe, according to Andrea de Seguro, the Spanish baritone, who reached here to-day on the steamship Regina d'Italia.

"Seventy grand opera stars will sail from Italy on the Canope on Oct. 15," he said. "Mr. Gatti-Casazza will be at the head of them. But—alas!—think of the brave singers who now are fighting for their countries!"

"Dinah Gilly is a prisoner at Prague. Poor Dinah! Do you remember how they made fun of his name? Those persons who did ridicule his name probably are sorry now, for Dinah Gilly was one of the first to go to the front as a private."

Then Albert Reiss, the German tenor, is a prisoner in France. Renaud, the great singer, the great actor, is fighting for France at Verdun, the Spanish baritone, who reached here to-day on the steamship Regina d'Italia.

The Spanish baritone was wearing his customary monocle when the boat docked and Capt. Vigliani Quintino, of the Regina d'Italia, threw up both hands and said he was glad de Seguro was going.

"I like him, he is fine," said the Captain, "but he plays the joke. Bah! People at Quarantine, they think he is Caruso—the great Enrico. And de Seguro, he says, 'But I'm Caruso. Caruso, he wears the monocle since the war started.'"

Also on the liner was Miss Anna Fiala, a Chicago young woman who went to Italy penniless and friendless two years ago, made her debut in Grand Opera, and since has scored triumphs in France and Spain. She sang for the Queen of Spain a few months ago and the Queen presented her with a jeweled pin bearing the royal crest.

"American girls are sought after as operatic singers abroad," said the young woman. "To say they are not wanted is absurd. My own case proves the truth of that."

ACCUSED OF THEFT WHEN HE APPEALS TO POLICE

Objected to Being Shadowed as Suspect After Losses by Bundle Wagon Boys.

For three days Detectives Cassano and Gaynor have been following Louis Harris, believing that he was the cause of the complaints from merchants and their patrons that somebody was watching the delivery departments of stores, hurrying ahead of the wagons to the places where packages were to be delivered and tricking the delivery boy into giving them up. At Broadway and Eighteenth street to-day Harris turned on Gaynor and made a noisy protest against being followed. He appealed to a traffic policeman to arrest Gaynor and was laughed at. A crowd gathered and Harris was so abusive that Gaynor arrested him for "disorderly conduct."

A number of complainants regarding package thefts were at once summoned to Police Headquarters. Two of them positively identified Harris as the man who had robbed them.

VON MOLTKE STILL CHIEF OF GERMAN GENERAL STAFF, LATE BERLIN ADVICES SAY.

LONDON, Oct. 7 (Associated Press).—Apparently there is some misapprehension as to the appointment given Gen. Voigt-Rheta. Late Berlin advices say that he has been made Quartermaster-General in place of Gen. von Moltke. The appointment of Gen. Voigt-Rheta as Chief of Staff of the Imperial Guard. Earlier reports were to the effect that Gen. Voigt-Rheta had succeeded Gen. von Moltke as Chief of General Staff.

Willett, convicted of conspiracy in the Brooklyn Supreme Court nomination scandal, for a certificate of reasonable doubt on which to go before the Court of Appeals with an appeal from the decision of the Appellate Division.

In the case of Louis F. Walter Jr., convicted with them, whose bail bond of $5,000 has been declared forfeited, the National Surety Company stated to-day that it did not consider that it was obligated to produce Walter owing to the stay granted by Justice Stapleton.

District Attorney Cressy holds that Walter is a fugitive from justice, although Walter has offered to give himself up.

THREE SHOT IN STREET DUEL

Chicago Politician and Two Detectives Suffer in Gun Fight.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—In a revolver duel at one of the city's busiest corners this afternoon Barney Bertache, former prominent politician, was seriously wounded. Detective Sergeant James Monahan was shot below the heart and will die, and Detective Sergeant William Egan suffered a bad wound. Bertache, a former salaried keeper and a power during the regime of the late Mayor Egan, was recently convicted of complicity in the operations of "relax-yants' trust." Had feeling is said to have existed between Bertache and Detective Monahan since the trial, and when Bertache met the two detectives at Randolph and Dearborn streets this afternoon the duel followed.

BIG CORN CROP PROSPECTS.

Forecast of Yield Shows Gain of 75,000,000 Bushels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Greater corn prospects by 75,000,000 bushels and great improvement in tobacco, increasing the prospects of that crop over the forecast in September by $2,000,000 pounds, were the features of the Department of Agriculture's October crop report, announced to-day. An increase of 11,000,000 bushels in the potato crop, 21,000,000 bushels in the corn crop and 9,000,000 bushels in the apple crop also were forecast.

Spring wheat showed a slight decrease, being 4,000,000 bushels under the September forecast, yet the combined crop of winter wheat and spring wheat makes this year's harvest of that grain a record one.
